School Board Plans Book Rental

Beginning the 1957 September term the Coleman School District intends to start a book rental scheme. By this means the cost of text books and work books will be greatly reduced to you.

The proposal could best be explained by following illustration:

Let us suppose that your child requires a book that ordinarily would cost $2.20. The School Bd. purchases this book at a 40 per cent discount, (the cost of the book is now $1.32). However, the handling charges and the cost of lost and damaged books could easily amount to 10 per cent, so the net price of the book the student is $1.54.

In order to protect itself the School Board intends to require a 50 per cent deposit of this net price, that is, the deposit is 40 per cent of $1.54—61c. The life expectancy of a book is three years, so the yearly rental is one third of the net price, namely $1.54 divided by three, or 51c. It is impossible to deal with these fractional numbers so the real cost of the book will be $1.55, deposit 60c, rental 50c, so for the first year the cost of this $2.20 book will be $1.10, but 60c will be returned at the end of the term if the book is still in good condition.

Work books can only be used for one year so they cannot be rented. However under this scheme it is possible for the Board to buy work books in bulk and sell them at a 30 per cent discount off the ordinary cost. There is, of course, no deposit or refund in this case.

The number of second hand books in the area is going to confuse the issue for some time.

However, the Board can do nothing about this matter. It is purely the choice of the student whether he enters the rental scheme or purchases outright second hand books.

Get-Together Picnic Planned by Former Coleman Residents

Plans are going ahead for this picnic to be held later this month and anyone interested in going to this fine affair, especially from out of town, should contact Mr. J. Allen, sr. or Mr. Dickinson.

Mr. S. Ondrus was appointed vice-principal to replace Mr. J. McDonald, who resigned to take a new teaching position at Medicine Hat. Mr. McDonald has been on the Coleman teaching staff for many years. Mr. McDonald will also go to Medicine Hat for the fall term.

A replacement teacher for the fall term, Miss V. Peknik, has been hired. Another popular teacher on the Coleman teaching staff for years, Mr. Mascherin, has also handed in his resignation.

The board, in accepting the resignations, did so with considerable regret.

The matter of the painting contract up for acceptance, was held over till June 17 for more study.

IN THE HOME WORKSHOP

This simple drop-leaf table on one pair of wheels saves many steps between kitchen and outdoor dining area. The wheels may be cut out of solid stock or attractive metal disk wheels with large rubber tires may be preferred. The bottom shelf provides a place for one or more serving trays. The cart and trays are made entirely of stock sizes of lumber. All the odd shaped parts are made by first tracing the saw lines directly to the wood, including an eight-inch circle for the wooden wheels. The pattern gives a cutting list for the various parts with all detailed directions for assembling and finishing. Price of pattern 443 is 35c.

Weathervane

A cupola lends distinction to the most ordinary garage. It is not difficult to make one on your roof line, and then set it in place. Pattern 407, which shows every step including a device for shaping the bottom to follow your roof line, will be mailed for 35c. The weathervane is made with pattern 241 which also is 35c.

Another landmark going down here

Another landmark on the Humboldt scene is soon to be missing. The St. Andrew's Anglican Church Parish Hall is now in the process of being demolished and it is expected the building will be completely torn down by the end of June. The Hall was sold some months ago to Sid Hall who is having the building demolished.

Rev. F. A. Creighton told The Journal this week that, while there are no immediate plans for rebuilding, a long-term reconstruction program is being studied by congregation and it is hoped eventually to build a new church which would also contain a parish hall.—The Journal, Humboldt, Sask.—April 18, 1957.

Lawful to use four headlights

Saskatchewan motorists may use four headlights on their automobiles as a result of an amendment to a section of the Vehicles Act, J. A. Christie, chairman of the Highway Traffic Board, has announced.

The amendment was recommended by the board in view of the fact that manufacturers are now selling new automobiles equipped with four headlights.

"Many people," he said "are still unaware of the fact that is now legal to use four headlights in the province and numerous inquiries have been pouring into the Highway Traffic Board office."

"Another amendment to the Vehicles Act is the 'dimming distance' amendment," he said.

The distance for dimming headlights when approaching an oncoming vehicle has been reduced from 1,500 feet to 500 feet to eliminate an unnecessary distance the motorist had to travel without seeing the road clearly.—The Bruno Times, Humboldt, Sask.—April 19, 1957.

Mrs. Christie urged every Saskatchewan motorist to participate in the Safety Lane check up.

"Five trained men will operate the safety lane to check cars free of charge. They will tell exactly what is wrong with cars from a safety standpoint. Please remember that although highway safety depends largely on the driver, the safest driver is dangerous if his automobile is not safe," Mrs. Christie said.

COMPARABLE ILL-HEALTH

Mental illness has many forms and degrees of seriousness, just as with physical illness. The public is gradually realizing that illness of either body or mind is not a matter for shame or secrecy. With modern advancements in medicine and psychiatric treatment, many cases of mental illness are permanently cured.

BKTE WEEK

Since everyone seems to be admiration for those folks who are the year as this or that, we may as well get into the act by suggesting a "Be Kind To Editors" Week. This would be a week in which all news writers at home or abroad would be most careful that all copy to the editor is so legibly written, so carefully constructed, that for that week at least he could get along without his big blue pencil.

Funny and Otherwise

Inflation: When nobody has enough money because everybody has too much.

It was a warm day, and a dull case concerning the rights of river commissioners was being argued.

Counsel made speeches of indefinite length, and the judge fell into a doze.

"But, we must have water here, your honor," thundered the defending lawyer in such stentorian tones that the judge came to.

"All right," he mumbled hastily, "but only a very little in mine!"

The newlyweds booked the honeymoon suite in a hotel. The bride was a beautiful creature, truly statuesque in figure, and her husband was obviously very much in love with her. The walls were thin, and two sailors occupied the next room.

"My dearest," said the husband, "you are so beautiful. Guess I'll get a sculptor from New York to model you."

A moment later there was a knock on the door. "Who's there?" asked the husband.

"Two sculptors from New York."

The squirrel's parrot had flown away and a reward was offered. A country yokel spotted the parrot perched on his roof, so he got a ladder and climbed up. As soon as the man's head appeared above the thatch, the parrot inquired in a haughty voice: "Well, my good man, and what do you want?"

The countryman touched his forehead and muttered, "Sorry, sir, I thought 'e were a bird."

"That will be a shilling, sir," the barber said.

"A shilling?" echoed the sailor. "That's a lot for a shave, isn't it?"

"Well," said the barber, "Look at the extra labor nowadays."

"What extra labor?"

"Why, sir, what with the war and business slacking off and Income Tax going up, people's faces get longer and longer."

A loveless sailor decided to celebrate pay day by sending a wire to his girl in Toronto. After chewing on his pencil for several minutes he finally turned in a cable that read, "I love you, I love you, I love you, John."

The clerk in the cable office read it over and said, "You're allowed to add a tenth word for the same price."

The sailor pondered for several minutes and then added his tenth word. It was "Regards."

Backward children, usually called "retarded," may be helped in many cases to become useful citizens, capable of earning their own living, through special training and education.

Talks started with Moosomin Union Board, plan accepted in principle

Although no official word has been received from the Hospital Planning Commission it is thought that the plan has passed that body and on that basis representatives from the local town and municipal councils met on Monday evening with the members of the Moosomin Hospital Board to negotiate the Whitewood area entering the Moosomin Union Hospital District and the construction of a hospital here.—The Herald, Whitewood, Sask.—May 2, 1957.

The letters "F" and "S" are considered the two most difficult to distinguish over the telephone.

Jubilee festival has opening at Morden

For the first time in its 25 year history, the Southern Manitoba Music and Speech Arts Festival Competitions held the opening sessions in Morden. Officially opening the 1957 sessions, Mr. C. C. Strachan listed the 25th anniversary as a mark of achievement.

The festival is serving a wonderful purpose in helping to develop our young people, he said.

The first day's sessions, held yesterday in the Collegiate Auditorium featured the Morden Instrumental classes. The adjudicator, Filmer Hubble, found the performances to be both "enjoyable and most interesting." Generally speaking he found the standards of playing to be fairly good.—The Times, Morden, Man.—April 24/57.

To mother

(The Globe, Lacombe, Alberta—May 9, 1957)

The meaning of Mother conjures a slightly different picture to all of us. That is because the average mother fills a many-sided role as Queen of the household. It is mother who mends the clothes, and dusts the floors, and prepares the meals; who does the washing and vacuums the rugs, and bakes apple pies. These are just a few physical duties, and perhaps the least important.

Mother's main task is to bind the individuals within the dwelling into one happy family. Only a mother, with her capacity for boundless love and tenderness and understanding is capable of fulfilling this difficult job. Without a mother to supply purpose and direction, a family would soon disintegrate into aimless personalities like spokes on a wheel without a central adhesive hub. The wheel soon warps and refuses to function.

It is mother who nurtures the baby from the cradle through adolescence, who steers six-year-old Johnny over a major crisis of losing his last marble at a neighborhood game, who soothes the emotional stress of 15-year old Mary going to her first school dance, who acts with wisdom as an impartial arbitrator in settling differences between brother and sister.

After mother indicates her position as chief administrator, and the family grows up and leaves home, only then do most children begin to appreciate what has been done for them. If we are lucky, our mother will still be living and it will not be too late to give belated thanks. We can do this openly or subtly, but the best way to show our appreciation is to return the love, which mother has given to us every day of our lives.

If we forget through the year, let's not forget to give mother our love on Mother's day, next Sunday.

Youth must be served

(The Herald & East Central News, Hanna, Alta.)

Seldom in the industrial world do we find the old axiom that "youth must be served." We visualize heads of big industry and corporations as being grey haired (if not bald), scowling, heavy-jawed or sharp featured quick thinking fellows. Indeed, there are many of this type, but with the passing of time and the great strides being made in industry today things are changing at the executive level.

It was refreshing that we learned from Chrysler Corporation of Canada Limited that a 31-year-old man, C. Allan Foran had been elected to the board of directors of that company. According to an announcement by the president Mr. Foran will be his executive assistant and director of organization for Chrysler of Canada. Mr. Foran is a native of Winnipeg and a veteran of the RCAF in which he served as an aircrew member.

Does not Mr. Foran's election bring back that old ditty of "go 'way old man, go 'way?"

Holy smoke

(The Herald & East Central News, Hanna, Alta.)

Whether or not Canadians are killing themselves with cigarettes, they are contributing much to the nation's coffers. That estimable publication the Financial Post has been doing some investigating into the cigarette industry and has come up with some astounding figures.

During 1956, says the Post, Canadians smoked (heavier types may have beaten them) 27 billion cigarettes. For this privilege, smokers, estimated at 50 percent of the adult population, paid $565 million. Of that over $300 million went into federal and provincial taxes. No wonder the tobacco growers are yelling "holy smoke," and the government's saying "light up mother!"

When shall correspondence be confidential?

(The Mercury, Estevan, Sask.)

The recent minor tilt between Premier St. Laurent and Conservative party leader Mr. Diefenbaker in parliament at Ottawa, over some correspondence the former was presumed to have had with President Eisenhower, brings up the question as to what constitutes confidential communications in the realm of government.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked the Premier about a press report to the effect that the latter had sent a letter to the president of the United States protesting against the latter's farm surplus disposal program. The former maintained that even if the protest was "confidential" the House of Commons had a right to know whether or not it had actually been sent.

Mr. St. Laurent refused to deny or confirm the press report that had sent such a letter saying that "to state whether such a letter had been written would make the system of confidential interviews and confidential correspondence lose practically its whole value."

In basic theory there is probably not too much difference between the routine of business communications passing from one individual to the other and communications in connection with the business of a country at government level, other than the latter is the realm of public interest.

Or to bring it to a situation closer to home and one that can be more easily appreciated and understood, the work of local councils can be used as an example.

One of the latter, let it be said, might be entering into negotiations with an individual over some matter, or with another council; or with a provincial government department.

Would anyone say that it was good business or tactful procedure to accede to an opposition demand that in the public interest all correspondence to date and before the negotiations were completed, should be made public?

Such action might well destroy the whole negotiation which otherwise would have reached a satisfactory conclusion.

In these days when actions and utterances of public men are pounced upon and publicized, often to dimensions far beyond what they merit, it would seem fit and proper, that they be given the right to correspond and confer in confidence up to the point, at least, when some decision has been made between them.

That Mr. St. Laurent wrote to Mr. Eisenhower (which he no doubt did), in confidence, as one individual to another, is about as simple and as effective a way to reach a common understanding on any matter as there is. Certainly more so than if Mr. St. Laurent on writing, immediately read the letter in the House. Everyone knows when would happen then—pressure groups in legislative circles in both countries would have immediately found reasons to get into action.

We know that the US farm surplus situation is something of great interest in the welfare of the Canadian farmer but we fail to see how any harm can come to anyone from withholding the contents of a letter between two principals even if it carried a protest.

The main point involved, we would say, is the fact that Mr. St. Laurent is apparently trying to present a case to Mr. Eisenhower in regard to the US farm surplus disposal program. That he be successful in his approach is of more importance than assurance he may have sent a letter or what he may have said in such letter.

Anyway sending a letter to Mr. Eisenhower was a much less costly method than going to Washington for a personal interview, though of course there would be no carbon copy of the latter.

Rackets that bloom in the spring

(The Journal, Melfort, Sask.—May 9, 1957)

Spring is busting out all over. The warm balmy breezes of spring cause the green shoots to poke their winter-weary heads up through the ground. Little lambs and calves kick their heels high and scamper over the soft turf. The saps starts to . . .

Sap, that's the word. For sap is not confined alone to the trunks of trees. Oh no indeed. And spring does not affect the tree sap, alone. It seems to have an unexplainable effect upon Sap . . . iens homo. He becomes light-headed and loses his usual canny and somewhat practical head.

And because of this, the gyp artists, who recognizes the affects of Spring on Sap . . . iens Homo, goes to work in full force. He's out with his "get-rich gimmicks," "I can get it for you wholesale," and "I've got a friend, who knows a friend," etc., etc., and it's surprising just how many fall for his line.

And what it all adds up to is this. The unsavory character walks off with your money and you are left holding the bag.

The answer lies in knowing with whom you are dealing. Reputable firms, with long-established records of service cannot afford to use the tactics of the gyp artist. They must stand behind what they sell and are willing to make adjustments promptly and fairly.

Local business firms merit your support. They are open to serve you. You know their owners, their sales staff and you know what they sell.

The gyp-artist has a smooth convincing line, sometimes awfully hard not to swallow. If you have doubts, ask for credentials, license to sell, investigate thoroughly. Then ask for a call back, after you have had time to think it over. If he is out to make a sap of you, he'll pass on, possibly admiring you for being just a bit smarter than he thought.

Last budget was much better

(The Press, Acton, Ont., March 21, 1957)

Well we've had another budget the past week. In spite of all its criticisms it did not levy any new taxes and it did provide additional assistance to many who have no other means of getting it in these days of ever rising living costs. Finance Minister Harris cannot be accused of presenting an election favored budget that might have had real significance to all of us who continually desire lower tax levies from every source.

It was an odd turn of events that found Premier Frost calling the surplus that the Federal government reported "a disgrace." This from a leader whose government until this year had consistently reported surpluses each year. Perhaps with the new Ontario levies the premier of the province may next year, be able to go into disgrace again and present a surplus budget. Most folks like surpluses, especially if they have the opportunity to share in them.

Clearly Mr. Harris' budget was one to help those whose meagre funds will not allow them to create any more inflation. It was encouraging to note that not only pensioners are to be assisted but encouragement was given to those self-employed persons who can now make a tax deduction from income on retirement savings plans. To the many who were brought up when it was customary to provide for your own rainy days this is the first light in a long time.

Tax reductions amount to $55,000,000 and benefit payment increases in 1957-58 amount to $93,000,000. To whatever extent you share in these amounts $193,000,000 is a nice sizeable amount to have a share in and a step in the right direction—and this without any tax increases from Federal tax sources next year.

Yet to come in the budget year is the municipal levy. Then you spend the balance of the year meeting the payments.

A mockery of press freedom

(The Progress, Winkler, Manitoba—May 8, 1957)

Freedom is still a fighting word.

If it were not, socialists and communists would not be at such pains to pretend that their economic and political panaceas were consistent with freedom. It is because the word "freedom" has such powerful appeal that leftists have devised each equivocations as "freedom within the law" and "rights of property subject to the needs of the community."

The latest and most blatant attempt to cloak slavery in freedom's garb, however, comes from Hungary, where the new Hungarian Press Bill states in lofty terms that: "Everyone is free to publish his thoughts in the Press, provided these thoughts are in harmony with the interests of the working class in the social-economic State system of the people's democracy."

This, assuredly, is an extreme case. It is worth remembering, however, if for no other reason that even in Canada there are those who sincerely believe that it is in the interests of democracy to qualify in one way or another the freedom of the press.

The best way to unmask such hypocrisy is to remind those who advocate limiting or qualifying press freedom that what they are in fact proposing is to limit or qualify the people's right to know.

Must grow with the times

(The Canadian, Camrose, Alta.)

The City of Camrose is indebted to Jim Dabbs for his determination towards artificial ice in the curling rink. Camrose now has a very modern curling establishment with as good and sometimes better facilities than can be found in many city rinks. Visiting curlers are glad to come here and each winter several groups make this their headquarters for bonspiels, and the ice is rented almost continually. The concession facilities are quite adequate and the surroundings pleasant. Opposite to this Camrose has an ice skating arena that is at the mercy of the weatherman and nearly every time some special hockey match is billed or some carnival is planned, the weather turns warm and the affair is ruined. Many communities smaller than Camrose have taken things in hand and installed ice making machines. It can be done here . . . and Camrose will be looked upon as a second rate sports centre until such time as artificial ice is installed. No good hockey circuit wants Camrose until such time as there is a guarantee of an ice surface in the local arena. Here is something that the City Council could well get busy on before the weather turns cold next fall.

Once a gamble

(The Sun, Swift Current, Sask.)

As industrialization infiltrates the parishes and brings with it rising costs and a decreasing labor source, it faces the farmer with the problem of producing more with less help. He'll have to if he is to hold his place in the country's changing economy.

He'll have to make other changes too: farms will have to be larger to insure the most profitable use of machinery to replace labor. Specialization in production will have to be more rigidly practiced. And there must be stronger application of capital to agricultural operation.

Farming was once a gamble. Today it is a profession. Tomorrow it will be a science. The farmer who realizes this and prepares himself for it, will have more security than he has now.

OF MANY THINGS by Ambrose Hills MAN-TO-MAN

"The way I see it," a big, good-natured American tourist said to me "you Canadians ought to be yourselves and us folks in the USA ought to be ourselves, and we'd get along fine. When you've got a beef, name it and speak up bluntly; and when we're sore, we'll say so too. After all, you ain't a baby country—you're too big for sulking and you ought to deal man-to-man."

I liked what he had to say, and I took his advice. First, I told him I was sore at Congressional Committees for crossing our border with their slander. I hate Commies as much as anybody does, but I think we're capable of unearthing them ourselves without using the scatter-gun techniques of some USA Committees.

"Okay," he said, "and you ticked us off Good. Nobody went to war about it!"

"Another thing," I said, while I still had my dander up, "is the way some of your windy senators rant about so-called Canadian cartels and monopolies in Canadian newsprint. Don't they know that the 1957 capacity of newsprint mills either in the States or controlled by the USA is bigger than the capacity of all Canadian-owned mills?"

"That true," he asked, skeptically.

"True as you're born," I told him, and I dug up figures—American figures—to prove it.

"Well," he said, shaking his head, "that just shows what I mean. You folks sulk over such things, instead of speaking up. Down home, we talk back to Washington plenty. You ought to do the same. But you pussyfoot too much. Americans would rather you'd get these things off your chests . . . if you don't, one day you'll blow up on us something awful!"

I think he is right. I was happy to note the other day that at least one Canadian industrialist, P. M. Fox, blasted Washington politicians in language they could understand and with figures they couldn't refute. If more leading Canadians would do the same thing when necessary, we'd have a healthier, happier relationship with the USA. Surely, as mature friends, we ought to be able to deal, as my American tourist put it "man-to-man".

Letter to the Editor

The Journal,
Coleman, Alberta.

It seems to me that any possibility of solving the problem of keeping the Crows Nest Pass mines producing should be explored and given every chance for development. Your article on coal-powered electric plants was excellent and every way of reducing freight rates either by sub-ventures or other subsidy is a worthwhile endeavor. However, it is unlikely that coal can be made attractive to the eastern manufacturer regardless of the rates, and that both Alberta and Pennsylvania coal fields will suffer, for the easterner likes the idea of getting gas which will help him with the ash disposal problem.

It seems to many people that thing to do is to attract industry to the coal fields rather than make the Crows Nest compete in distant fields, although there is a good chance of a Japanese market for the area, since much of the haul would be by water, and this is an important angle to try to work out.

However, coal can serve as a raw material as well as power. West Virginia, an area much like The Pass, today is full of plants which produce nylon, chemical, dyes and a hundred other products.

Every town of one or two thousand has a plant of some kind or other and what has been done by Chambers of Commerce in that state to bring in industries, small and large, is amazing.

Production of electric power, chemicals, steel, lead could make the Pass but denying the possibilities of anything being done for the Pass, except subsidizing its production in a shrinking market, may break it.

I much enjoyed spending a week at the Pass recently and find the people very friendly, and I hope to set up business in one of the Pass towns in a few years because I can see a tremendous future for the place.

unknown waters. Have a responsible adult check a new area for drop-offs, currents, water purity . . . and for safe firm bottoms.

7—Do not swim alone under any circumstances. Child and adult alike may panic when no help is near.

8—Don't swim in the dark — it's DANGEROUS.

Sold to the breakers

For several weeks now the former Cunard liner Ascania has been lying in a shipbreaker's yard in Newport on the Bristol Channel. Acetylene torches have reduced Ascania's once tall superstructure and graceful hull to a slinged and gutted shell and within a few days nothing will remain of the old ship but her records.

Last November, after 33 years' service in good times and bad, the Ascania sailed out of Montreal harbor on her final crossing of the Atlantic. She was fondly known to thousands of Canadian travelers and the men and women who served in her down through the years never forgot her comfortable ways nor her steadiness when the Atlantic was ornery.

As is customary when a Cunard liner completes her final voyage, the Ascania was sold to the breakers who, in turn, auctioned all fittings, furniture and other movables on board. Ship lovers from widely-scattered parts attended the Ascania's last rites and within a few hours of the sale, the old ship's lounges, smoking rooms and restaurants were being cut up by a list of breakers' torches.

One of the first public rooms to be stripped was the Ascania's Long Gallery, a lounge on the promenade deck. On the mellowed oak paneling in this room was a small plaque that was presented to the Ascania by Lloyd's of London in 1935 for her part in a gallant rescue. This little tablet, perhaps, best expressed the old ship's doughty career and the qualities of the men who served her.

In December, 1934, the tramp steamer Usworth, bound for Queenstown with a cargo of grain, was the last vessel to leave Montreal. In mid-Atlantic, a week after sailing, the Usworth ran into terrific seas which damaged her rudder. Her steering gear failed and three days later heavy seas stove in her hatches and she took a list of 25 degrees.

The Ascania was 100 miles away when she received the Usworth's SOS at midnight, December 13. The Cunarder changed course and steamed at 16 knots to the rescue through mountainous seas. The Ascania reached the Usworth at 3 a.m. and found the Belgian steamer Jean Jadot standing by. The Belgian got a lifeboat away which took off 14 of the Usworth's crew. As the boat got back to the side of the Jean Jadot, it smashed against the ship's side and capsized. Twelve men from the Usworth and two of the lifeboat's crew were drowned.

After seeing the disaster, every officer and seaman in the Ascania volunteered to attempt the rescue of those still aboard the sinking Usworth. One of the Ascania's lifeboats was manned and lowered away. Before the boat reached the stricken ship, however, two of the tramp's seamen and her ship's boy jumped into the sea and were swept away. The captain and eight seamen who had remained on the Usworth waited until the Ascania's boat was almost alongside then jumped overboard and were pulled to safety. The lifeboat returned to the Cunarder and was hoisted aboard with all in her safe. A few moments later the Ascania proceeded on her voyage. As she steamed away, the Usworth slipped beneath the surface of the Atlantic.

Spring Cues Closet Cleanup

BY EDNA MILES

AS most cleaning is done these days, there's no longer a set housecleaning spree known as spring cleaning. But somehow, spring does seem the ideal time of year to turn out the closets.

Perhaps it's because so much has accumulated in them during the winter months. First step is to get rid of the useless things that always collect in closets. The next is to remove everything so that shelves, walls and floors can be scrubbed.

An efficient cleaner for walls and woodwork can be made by adding a cup of ammonia, one-half cup vinegar and one-fourth cup baking soda to one gallon of water. If you like, use a little household bleach to dispel musty odors.

When you put away winter clothes, always label the boxes and clothes bags so they can be identified at a glance. And in moth-proofing winter woollens, check the directions carefully before you start.

When everything is shipshape, again, keep a bottled wick deodorant on the closet shelf to maintain the fresh, clean smell.

Bang's disease outbreak 'serious'

A serious outbreak of Bang's disease in the area surrounding the Village of Neville, south of Swift Current, is affecting hundreds of cattle. The Sun has been unofficially informed that one cattlemen-farmer has had 150 head of his fine herd of Herefords affected. Veterinarians of the federal department of agriculture and those in private practice are working at top capacity in trying to keep the outbreak confined.

One veterinarian, who insisted that he remain anonymous, explained that Bang's disease is highly contagious and, once it breaks out in a herd, the animals must be disposed of. It is a disease of the blood-stream and does not affect the animal in any way that prevents its use for slaughtering purposes. But it can cause havoc, and serious financial loss, especially among valuable herds.

In an effort to get an official story on the Neville district outbreak, The Sun contacted the federal department of agriculture, health of animals division, but an official would make no statement. He referred the paper to a private veterinarian and several attempts to contact him failed. The federal man did, however, admit that an outbreak of Bang's disease had broken out around Neville and that it was considered serious. — The Sun, Swift Current, Sask.—April 28, 1937.

Curling in Germany

Nineteen curling quartets, made up of airmen serving with Canada's NATO Air Division, met last week at the RCAF's No. 4 Fighter Wing, Baden-Suedlingen, Germany, to compete for the Air Division curling championship.

An all western team from No. 4 Wing, led by skip Flight Sergeant Art Doe, of Lethbridge, Alta., won the cup after playing 12 hard-fought ends against a strong rink from No. 3 Wing, Zweibrücken, Germany, skipped by Sergeant George Marshall, of Bridgetown, N.S. Second player on the winning rink was Sgt. Chuck Browning, of Saskatoon. — The Manitou, Watrous, Sask.—May 2, 1937.

Canadian Sportsmen Always Prepared Fish Baits to Suit All Tastes

Canada, say rod and reel enthusiasts 'round the globe, is the greatest sport fishing country in the world. Millions of crystal lakes, thousands of silver streams, await the annual exodus from the cities of eager fishermen, armed with gaily-painted lures, who go forth to pit their skill against the cunning of the fish. Above, an 18-lb. northern pike surrenders to Bill Macdonald and Stephen Greenlees after a lusty struggle in the Pikitigushi River, north of Lake Nipigon.

Some of the more popular baits, which no well-heeled angler would be caught without, are shown above: the red-eyed wiggler, silver darters, and the whirling kidney spoon with feathered triple hook trailing.

A perennial favourite is the wobbling spoon bait. Its wounded minnow action has tricked many a champion muskie, pike, walleye, bass and trout onto the hook of some delighted sportsman.

Not all fishermen favour the heavily-stocked tacklebox. There are those who still adhere to the "can of worms" technique. It's a matter of taste, they say . . . and sometimes, results. Many a father has blushed with mortification, returning empty-handed from the weekend expedition, to find that his 8-year old son, equipped only with willow pole, a hook, and a lowly worm has the evening meal swimming placidly in the bathtub.

Canadian statistics report

(A Weekly Review)

Pricing: The consumer price index rose 0.3 percent during March to reach a new peak of 120.9 at April 1, making a twelve-month rise of 3.7 percent. Three of the sub-indices—food, clothing and other commodities and services—moved up in the month to raise the overall index. Shelter was unchanged and household operation fractionally lower.

In contrast, the index number of industrial material prices at wholesale declined 0.4 percent in the four weeks from March 29 to April 26. Farm product prices at terminal markets during this period, however, moved upward, with gains for both animal and field products.

Transportation: Railway carloadings dropped sharply in the week ending April 21 to leave the cumulative total over 7 percent below last year at 1,114,448 cars.

A new Bureau monthly report shows the volume of freight carried by foreign and coastwise shipping services in January amounted to 3,557,689 tons, 2,403,865 tons being shipped in foreign service.

Passenger numbers on inter-city and rural bus lines fell off again in February, but revenue improved.

Manufacturing: March shipments by manufacturers had an estimated value of $1,807,417,000, which is 2.6 percent higher than a year earlier but under the gain of 5 percent for the quarter. Total inventory at the month's end was over 11 percent above last year and unfilled orders nearly 4 percent higher.

For vehicle shipments to the end of March were over 26,000 units larger than last year, most of the gain being in passenger cars. April output, however, was down nearly 10,000 units.

Pig iron production was up 11 percent to the end of April, and steel ingots up 5 percent.

Household: Canada's ten provinces had $23,547 or 15.3 percent more households in June, 1956 than 1951, a slightly larger increase than the population rise. Numbers were largest in all provinces, Ontario leading in percentage as well as numerical gain.

Housing: New dwelling units started in the first quarter this year totalled an estimated 7,769, just slightly more than all the numerous as last year, while the number completed was about 1,000 fewer at 24,537.

Building permits issued in February totalled $78,988,000, residential accounting for $54,521,000 against $14,447,000 non-residential.

Quebec Natural Gas Financing

(Contributed by Houston, Willoughby &amp; Co. Ltd.)

As indicated previously, financing for Quebec Natural Gas Corporation was around the corner. These securities have now been disposed of to Quebec residents in the main, and consisted of $20 million 5½% subordinated debentures and $8 million (800,000 shares) of common stock. The debenture-stock units were offered at a price of $40 for each $100 of debentures plus 4 common shares. In respect to the common shares, two shares can be detached and sold no earlier than May 20th, and not later than July 1957. The remaining two shares can be detached and sold no earlier than October 1st, 1958, and no later than January 1st, 1960. Following the offering, the debentures and common stock units went as high as $41-5/8. In addition to the Units of debentures and common shares, $20 million of first mortgage bonds due 1980 were sold, divided $12,550,000 of 5½% bonds in Canada and the balance of $7,450,000 5½% bonds in the United States.

The prospectus shows that the company is to acquire the gas production and distribution facilities of Hydro-Quebec for approximately $39,100,000 subject to certain adjustments and contingent liabilities. It is estimated it will cost $14,500,000 for conversion of the present gas system of Hydro-Quebec to the distribution of natural gas. Supplies of gas will be originally secured from Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. by way of Niagara and Toronto but by the close of 1955 it is anticipated that gas will be drawn from the Trans-Canada Pipeline System which should be finished from Alberta by that time.

City of Montreal

The Executive Committee of the City of Montreal plans to borrow $18 million. It is intended to examine an approach to market with an issue as soon as possible. Proceeds from the borrowing will be applied to the repayment of temporary borrowing for a variety of public works, which have been completed and paid for in recent months.

Great Lakes Power Corporation

A new issue of $5 million of Great Lakes Power Corporation 5½% debentures carrying share purchase warrants was announced the middle of the present week.

These debentures are to mature May 1st, 1977, and are priced at $100 to yield 5.75%.

Each $1,000 debenture will carry share purchase warrants permitting the purchase of 15 common shares of the company up to May 15th, 1958, at $23 per share. From May 16th, 1958, 1961 the warrant will permit the purchase of 15 common shares at $25 and this rises each 2 years between 1961 and 1967 and at an increasing rate of $2.00 with each price change.

As the common stock has been ranging around $22-42½, these warrants would appear to carry some attractive possibilities. Great Lakes Power Corporation Ltd. produces hydro-electric power which is sold to the Great Lakes Power Co. Ltd. for distribution in the City of Saint Ste. Marie, Ont., and surrounding territory. The Corporation has 6 Hydro-Electric Generating Stations inter-connected by over 193 miles of Transmission Lines with a total installed capacity of 173,000 h.p. The present borrowings will allow the company to complete a 7th Station with a further installed capacity of 28,000 h.p. Construction of a 4th Dam and Power Plant with Transmission facilities is planned for 1959. This will boost installed capacity a further 25,000 h.p.

Cheaper Money?

U.S. Treasury Bills: On Tuesday the result of the United States Government weekly Treasury Bill auction was announced at an average of 3.054%. This compared with the previous week figure of 3.194%. While it will take some time to see whether this is a reversal of the trend, it at least is an interesting possibility that is presented. Meanwhile in Canada, it has been rather noteworthy that Dominion Government mid-term issues have been somewhat weaker, selling off from ¼ to ½ of 1% in a number of the maturities between the Victory Loan 3's of 1960 down to the Victory Loan 3's of 1966. Also that 2½% Government of Canada issue due June 15th, 1967-68 was quoted on the 24th instant at 85½ bid $86¼ asked as compared with $86¾ bid and $87 asked recently.

It seems more than possible that some large investors holding Dominion of Canada bonds are willing to take a book loss represented by selling at these levels in order to buy long term new Corporation issues which probably have some type of warrant or bonus of common shares attached plus high coupon rates which make them particularly attractive at this time.

Fortemouing Issues

The rumour is that Canadian Dyno Uranium may place an issue of 9½ million 6½% bonds due May 1st, 1963, each $1,000 bond carrying 60 shares of common stock as a bonus and to be priced

200 Wells at Midale

Still most highly regarded from a point of view of proven reserves Midale oil field has just reached another major point in its development with the completion on April 8 of its 200th oil well.

Listed as the 200th well is the Husky-Mac-Mac No. 13-34 located in the northeast corner of the field. It is one of a group of successful outpost ventures that have been drilled in that same area.

The well is located five miles northeast of Shell Oil's original A-7-8 discovery well.

While the Midale field has reached the 200-well mark, the Steelman field where drilling operations were concentrated last fall and winter, now has a total of 256 wells capable of production. It is the largest field in southeastern Saskatchewan at the present time. The Mercury, Estevan, Sask. — April 23, 1957.

This information was given to the Kinnaird Commissioners by Commissioner F. G. Warner at the regular Monday night meeting in the Village Office.
